There is girls education is compulsory. Girls are also the future of the country. "more than 500 million adolescent girls are living in the developing world today. Every one of them can potentially help break the cycle of intergenerational poverty, with ripple effects multiplying across her society." Girl's education it all aims is that to every girl should have knowledge about all things. Some of the family has many issues about a study of girls. Generally, in the rural area, rural people rarely want to send to their daughter, but some people of their, do not want to send to their daughter for study in the school. They think that what will do the girls after the study. After that, they marry without study. Girls are not getting the proper education because of some family problem.

Girls Excelling in Math and Science: Are Girls Getting Enough Encouragement? These studies are important because a body of research has demonstrated that teachers' expectations can have a major influence on whether students show talent in a subject. In a study from 1966, Robert Rosenthal and Lenore Jacobson chose 20 per cent of students randomly and told their teachers that these youngsters had done extremely well on a test showing intellectual potential. The impact, called the Pygmalion effect, was that this 20 per cent showed greater IQ gains than those whom the teachers believed were simply
