Most teachers love teaching and even love the subjects they teach, but very few remember to even mention how much they love their students. Most teachers use fear and intimidation to manage their classes, which is the complete opposite of motivating the students. It is important to care about the students to bring out the best in them. 3. Teaching and learning takes place beyond the four walls of a classroom. It can happen in the playing field, coffee shop and even dining area. The best teachers will equip their students with skills not only to pass their exams, but also to make it easy for them when interacting with other students. A good teacher will get up and live to teach another day, even after a rough patch. 9. A lot of humility. In teaching speaking the problem is what form of speech to begin with, and what should be the relationship between monologue and dialogue. This problem may be solved in different ways. Pupils learn and recite it in class. They reproduce the text either in the very form it was given or slightly transform it. Reciting, though useful and necessary in language learning, has but little to do with speech since speaking is a creative activity and is closely connected with thinking, while reciting has to do only with memory. Of course pupils should memorize words, word combinations, phrases, sentence patterns, and texts to “accumulate” the material and still it is only a prerequisite. If a pupil misunderstands something when auding the teacher should do his best to ensure comprehension.
