Examines the social movements that developed in response to the industrialization of Ireland over the last two decades. Describes a history of conflict between the oil industry and the fishing and shellfish industries using Bantry Bay. Discusses John Hanrahan’s epic legal battle with Merck Sharp and Dohme, in which Hanrahan, a farmer, accused a local chemical company of emitting pollution severe enough to kill his cattle. Examines the community reaction to mining in Ireland over the last two ...

This book is based on Guests of the Nation: People of Ireland Versus the Multinationals by Robert Allen and Tara Jones, published by Earthscan, London, in 1990, which is now available online at www.bluegreenearth.com. Readers interested in the history of opposition to mining in Ireland and the story of the opposition to Gulf in Bantry should consult the 1990 edition, for these chapters are not included in this edition. The remaining original chapters have been rewritten and include new material. in print. Thanks also go to Tomas for drafting the original analysis for Guests of the Nation, Against Money and Power, which I have shamelessly plundered for the second half of this edition’s chapter of the same name, and part of the original draft of the Raybestos story. Presentation on theme: "Stateless Nations and Multinational States. Irredentism is any political or popular movement intended to reclaim and reoccupy a lost homeland. as such."— Presentation transcript: 1 Stateless Nations and Multinational States. Unfortunately for the Chinese they have made the Dalai Lama a world figure, where he has gotten much support from the rest of the world. Recently the Chinese have allowed no communications or foreigners in or out of Tibet. One interesting thing today is that hackers from outside China have threatened to bring down the Chinese government’s websites and computer infrastructure (maybe a new way social media may remake the political world). Guests of the Nation: The People of Ireland Versus the Multinationals. by Robert Allen. List Price: $16.95. ISBN 10: 185383064X. ISBN 13: 9781853830648. Binding: Paperback. Publication Date: 12/1/1990.
This book is based on Guests of the Nation: People of Ireland Versus the Multinationals by Robert Allen and Tara Jones, published by Earthscan, London, in 1990, which is now available online at www.bluegreenearth.com. Readers interested in the history of opposition to mining in Ireland and the story of the opposition to Gulf in Bantry should consult the 1990 edition, for these chapters are not included in this edition. The remaining original chapters have been rewritten and include new material. Thanks also go to Tomas for drafting the original analysis for Guests of the Nation, Against Money and Power, which I have shamelessly plundered for the second half of this edition’s chapter of the same name, and part of the original draft of the Raybestos story. Presentation on theme: “Stateless Nations and Multinational States. Irredentism is any political or popular movement intended to reclaim and reoccupy a lost homeland. as such.” — Presentation transcript: 1 Stateless Nations and Multinational States. Unfortunately for the Chinese they have made the Dalai Lama a world figure, where he has gotten much support from the rest of the world. Recently the Chinese have allowed no communications or foreigners in or out of Tibet. One interesting thing today is that hackers from outside China have threatened to bring down the Chinese government’s websites and computer infrastructure (maybe a new way social media may remake the political world). Guests of the Nation: The People of Ireland Versus the Multinationals. by Robert Allen. List Price: $16.95. ISBN 10: 185383064X. ISBN 13: 9781853830648. Binding: Paperback. Publication Date: 12/1/1990.