Second Great Awakening The impact and results of the Second Great Awakening are far more substantial than the First great awakening in which, women's rights were starting to form and slavery was abolished. Also, everybody was accepted under one nationalism as "American", in which after the second awakening people saw being American as being separate and being your own person and having your own individual beliefs. Additionally, these awakenings show continuity overtime because the ideas that were formulated in the First Great Awakening were carried further and expanded upon in the Second great Awakening. 1985.
