Abstract
Teachers of young learners of English in Taiwan are often encouraged to use children's literature in their teaching. My overall aims in this research project were to find out:

whether there is any agreement about the meaning of the term 'children's literature', particularly among those who recommend its use in the teaching of English to young learners in Taiwan;

what types of teaching materials and resources teachers of English to young learners in Taiwan claim to use and to value, and what... Read more Children learn effectively through scaffolding by adults. (Bruner, 1983). The adult's role is very important in a child's learning process. Like Vygotsky, Bruner focused on the importance of language in a child's cognitive development. He shows how the adult uses "scaffolding" to guide a child's language learning through finely-tuned talk. (Cameron, 2001). Now that we have looked at different learning styles and characteristics of young language learners, try to fill in the boxes in this mind map. With a partner, take turns reading each bubble before describing what word best fits each box. Use these words to fill in the boxes: Enjoyable Full of practice Meaningful. Purposeful Social Supported. This mind map can be found in the following article: Read, C. (1998, April). Teachers of young learners of English in Taiwan are often encouraged to use children's literature in their teaching. My overall aims in this research project were to find out: • whether there is any agreement about the meaning of the term 'children's literature', particularly among those who recommend its use in the teaching of English to young learners in Taiwan • how a sample of textbooks, guided readers and popular children's literature commonly used by teachers of young learners in Taiwan rate when considered in relation to a range of criteria derived from a critical review of writing on children's literature and, in particular, 'good' children's literature.
