Gaelic Games and 'the Movies'

Abstract
From the earliest days of the cinema, sport was one of the most popular subjects of representation. Unsurprisingly, when film arrived in Ireland, Irish sport, including gaelic games, would soon feature. Gaelic games were exhibited in both actualities and newsreel, even if many of these, particularly between the wars, would emerge from foreign companies, often with a strong British bias. However, it is difficult to definitively identify a distinct genre of Irish sports film per se – outside of documentary - and indeed few Irish fiction films that feature sport at all, and still less that feature gaelic games. However, gaelic games have had a place in film, and arguably a role that outweighs the actual minutes of screen time such games occupy. In particular, this article examines how representations of Gaelic games have related to two major forces in twentieth, and indeed twentieth-first, century Ireland – nationalism and tourism. Both of these issues are important to any understanding of the role and significance of representations of Gaelic Games in film and indeed, sometimes intersect in the context of individual films. More Info: The volume in which this chapter was included was the recipient of the North American Society for Sport History (NASSH) award for best collection of sport history related essays published in 2009.

Recommended Citation
The game had a brilliant idea and it was quite fun. But it lost support which resulted in the game dev team dropping support for it. I have googled many times trying to find a game similar but every time it has poor results. Reddit, Do you know any sim games like The Movies? 39 comments. share. [-] BubbaOtis 14 points15 points16 points 6 years ago* (2 children). There was this experimental game from an university, but I can't recall its title. It's a multiplayer game where through matchmaking you are placed in a movie scene with another player. The setting is a cardboard cutout moviesseret, one player is the director, the other is the actor. The goal is to make a film, composed of multiple scenes and do it all improvised. Experience Gaelic Games for Corporate Groups. Stag Party in Dublin? Gaelic Games – An Introduction. Why Choose Experience Gaelic Games? The Group Experience. See what makes Ireland unique. About Us. Experience Gaelic Games are an Irish company specialising in providing you with the ultimate Irish experience. Recent Posts. A sense of humour and a pair of flat shoes – you are now ready to Experience Gaelic Games. Pick up a hurl and immerse yourself in Irish culture. In the lead up to St Patrick's Day, Experience Gaelic Games have the perfect way to get ready for Sunday's celebrations. Warrior