(2006), Career psychology in the South African context.  (2nd ed.), Pretoria : Van Schaik.  You need to consider that training in psychology equips you with theoretical, practical and transferable skills that you could possibly apply in a variety of contexts. For example, psychology graduates could work in different capacities in the following fields: For-profit organisations (HR, marketing, project management, research, consulting, coaching). Research institutions (Human Science Research Council, Institute for Safety and Health Studies, Unisa Centre for Applied Psychology, to name a few).
