Planning encourages innovations. In the process of planning, managers have the opportunities of suggesting ways and means of improving performance. Planning is basically a decision making function which involves creative thinking and imagination that ultimately leads to innovation of methods and operations for growth and prosperity of the enterprise.