Obama cannot change the fact that he is illigetimate, but it is not too late for him to forsake his sins and become an HONEST man and a Christian.

Frank Marshall Davis was the real father of President Barack H. Obama.

Mr. Davis was born in Kansas and was assigned to the Pacific island paradise of Hawaii in 1948.

Frank Marshall Davis was born on December 31, 1905, in Arkansas City, Kansas. His father left soon after his birth and his mother also left him and moved to California 2 years later....He was raised by his great-grandmother, Mrs. Amanda Porter. Here is a quote from the autobiography of Mr. Davis entitled: Livin' the Blues:

My old man, Sam Davis floated into town from some place in the state of Arkansas. An itinerant barber and musician (he blew baritone horn, undoubtedly with a heavy seasoning of the blues), he met and married my mother, fathered me, hung around long enough to see what he and God had wrought, then drifted on. They were divorced before I was a year old, and I've never heard of him since. For all I know, the old boy played similar gigs in several towns, and I may be related to a lot of other people never heard of.

I was Mother's first and last child. Possibly I discouraged her, for when I was two she left with a white family for California to work as their maid for a couple of years. Since Aunt Hattie had already split the ho-hum prairie scene for Kansas City where there was more action, that left my care and feeding to Mrs. Amanda Porter, my great-grandmother.(Davis, Livin' the Blues, p. 7).

Obviously a very troubled childhood but many people have similar backgrounds and don't turn into spies.
Obama’s father graduated from Arkansas City high school in 1923.

Upon graduation, he attended Friends University in Wichita, Kansas and then attended Kansas State University in Manhattan, Kansas.

Frank Marshall Davis became a newspaper reporter in Chicago

Frank Marshall Davis moved to Chicago in 1927. Only 2 years later the Great Depression would begin and the only sure way of a regular salary was to work for the government.

According to his autobiography, he underwent severe financial struggles during this time but somehow managed to survive.

Obama’s father was a talented writer, newspaper editor, and poet.

Newspaper reporter is often a cover for a spy.

He also ran a nude photography studio which welcomed blacks and whites!!

Frank Marshall Davis married 23 year old Helen Canfield (1923-1998) in 1946, the year before the happy couple moved to Hawaii. She was a buxom blonde model that he met in his photography studio. Her wealthy parents disapproved of the match so this meant that she was cut out of their will.

In 1946, Obama’s father married 23 year old Helen Canfield in Chicago.

The Davis’ had 5 known children, all of them born after his assignment to Hawaii.

Sometime between 1927 and 1948, Frank Marshall Davis was recruited as a special agent or informer for the FBI—Federal Bureau of Inquisition....As a newspaperman, Davis had the perfect opportunity to know what was happening in Chicago. As a left wing or "Communist" sympathizer, no one would suspect him of association with the ultra right wing FBI.

As an additional cover-up, the FBI was extremely segregated and did not publicly admit black agents until the administration of President Kennedy.

Aloha—assignment Paradise!!
Imagine leaving the horrible Chicago winters and being assigned to Hawaii....There are areas in the United States where the climate is similar to Hawaii—but the Windy City in winter is definitely NOT one of them.

During the Chicago winter of 1948, our LUCKY couple decided to pack up and move to Paradise—Hawaii in the Pacific Ocean:

During the summer of 1948, Helen read an article in a woman's magazine describing how it was to live in Hawaii. She put it down, turned to me, and wondered wistfully if Hawaii was as wonderful as it seemed. I suggested we investigate. We decided to go there in December and stay two or three months, long enough to miss the worst of another Chicago winter; if we liked it, we would live there permanently. Meanwhile in the next few months I tried to learn all I could about Paradise through the Hawaii Visitors Bureau, Hawaiian magazines, Honolulu newspapers, and the National Geographic. When I learned the islands were free of snakes, I was automatically sold. Carefully, we packed our most prized possessions, our record collection, in cartons and stored them. (Davis, Livin' the Blues, p. 311).

That was the explanation for the move to Hawaii according to Mr. Davis....The real TRUTH is that he was a secret FBI agent and was assigned to Hawaii.

As a SPECIAL AGENT for the FBI—Federal Bureau of Inquisition—Mr. Davis was assigned to the Pacific paradise of Hawaii.

After his transfer to Hawaii, Mr. Davis wrote a weekly column, styled “Frank-ly Speaking,” for the Honolulu Record, a labor paper published by the International Longshore and Warehouse Union (ILWU), headed by Harry Bridges.

Davis also operated a small wholesale paper business, Oahu Papers, which mysteriously burned to the ground in March 1951. In 1959, he started another similar firm, the Paradise Paper Company.

Davis let the cat out of the bag when he said that people suspected him of being an FBI agent in disguise:

I first drew FBI attention when I joined with others in speaking my mind back in 1937 when the League of American Writers published the booklet, Writers Take Sides. Undoubtedly, a huge dossier was compiled on me because of my activities during World War II. When I left Chicago for Hawaii in 1948, I am confident this dossier arrived as soon as I did. Undoubtedly Honolulu agents were told to watch my every move. Usually those wanting telephones installed waited months for service and then could get only party lines. Invariably I received a private line a day or two after application, which permitted the FBI to monitor all my calls more easily. When they could find no evidence I was plotting to overthrow the government by force and violence, the Hoover Gestapo turned to other tactics. Friends told me FBI agents had approached them asking if they knew whether I was "peddling dope" and if I were a brother of Ben Davis, Jr. To underline the absurdity of it all, some of those later accused as Communists suspected I was "an FBI plant" trying to get the goods on them. (Davis, Livin' the Blues, pp. 325-326).

FBI agent is just a polite way of saying spy!

Frank Marshall Davis lived near the University of Hawaii!!

After fathering 5 children, Mr. Davis divorced his wife, Helen, in 1970. He never remarried and lived just across from the University of Hawaii:

In June 1969, I began living in a section of Waikiki known as the Jungle. Surrounded by big, pretentious tourist trap hotels, this area consisted of one- and two-story studio cottages, small hotels, and old homes converted into rooming houses and apartments. My quarters were a little studio facing a narrow, one-way street. My tiny porch with three stone steps was only two feet from the sidewalk, thus permitting me to hold conversations with pedestrians-and occasionally motorists-on both sides of the thoroughfare.

My neighbors were young men and women mainly from the mainland between eighteen and twenty-five years old, here on vacation or to attend the University of Hawaii. For the most part, they were from California, with a few from as far away as Maine and Florida. In addition there were others from South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, Canada, the Caribbean, Samoa, Tonga, and the other islands of the South Pacific. Hippies were still numerous, but the majority I thought of as members of the Now Generation. My relationships and experiences were so interesting and fantastic I detailed them, along with my three trips to the mainland in 1973 and 1974 to read my poetry, in a separate tome entitled "That Incredible Waikiki Jungle." What immediately impressed me about these young Americans, by far the numerical majority and most of them meeting for the first time in Hawaii, was their warm camaraderie and my ability to communicate on their own terms with no hint of a generation gap. Virtually all the young brothers consorted with ofay chicks (at least 80 percent of them longhaired blondes), and the sisters... were affiliated with white boys. Occasionally a brother, a honky lad, and two white girls rented quarters together. Young blacks in bountiful Afros and wearing dashikis crashed in pads rented by ofays they never knew before; occasionally I permitted young white girls to sleep overnight on my floor. I saw no signs of racial hangups; these were all members of the Now Generation associating with whom they liked and color be damned. (Davis, Livin' the Blues, pp. 327-328).

It was during one such free love affair that University of Hawaii student Ann Dunham became pregnant by Davis.

Her family moved to Hawaii that same year where she attended the University of Hawaii.

Ann Dunham and baby Obama.

It was there that she had an affair with Davis and the result was baby Obama!!

Ann Dunham later became an operative with the Rockefeller controlled Ford Foundation.

Ann Dunham was also known for her later work as an anthropologist and social activist for Ford Foundation counter-insurgency projects in Indonesia under the reactionary Suharto regime. Chipman notes, "Terance Bigalke, who worked with Dunham at the Ford Foundation in Jakarta, says she also fostered social activism in her children through her work on behalf of the world's poor. "She had such a strong concern for people who were in difficult circumstances economically," says Bigalke. That concern led her to study the underground economy of Jakarta street vendors. Ann Dunham's interest in anthropology had begun in Indonesia, Chipman found. Her first months in Indonesia "sparked a lifelong passion that later led Dunham to return to Hawaii for graduate studies in anthropology and an 800-page Ph.D. thesis on Indonesian blacksmithing. Her interest in the local culture was aroused almost immediately, when she started teaching English to Indonesians." In effect, whatever her subjective intentions, Ann Dunham profiled the Indonesian population for the United States Agency for International Development (US AID), the Ford Foundation, the World Bank, all key institutions for dollar imperialism. (Tarpley, Barack H. Obama The Unauthorized Biography, p. 30).

Frank Marshall Davis Obama and Zbigniew Brzezinski

Frank Marshall Davis Obama claimed to have attended Columbia University in New York City from 1980 to 1983, where he majored in political science with a specialization in international relations.

His mentor or guru was the right wing Russophobe, Zbigniew Brzezinski (born 1928), who was a professor in the school at that time. Brzezinski was national security adviser during the Presidency of Jimmy Carter from 1977 to 1981.

Brzezinski was Obama's teacher at Columbia University.

In 1978, Brzezinski was responsible for the "election" of fellow Pole, Karol Józef Wojtyła, as Pope John Paul II.

Pope John Paul II was ordered by Brzezinski to make his top priority the dissolution of the Soviet Union.

We can expect Obama to continue Brzezinski's policy of HATRED towards Russia.

We can expect Obama to continue Brzezinski's policy of HATRED towards Russia.

Obama had plenty of time for a thorough indoctrination with anti-Russian hatred while he was a disciple of Brzezinski at Columbia.

The FBI was founded by Charles Joseph Bonaparte!!

Charles Joseph Bonaparte was a grandson of Jérôme Bonaparte (the youngest brother of the French Emperor Napoleon I), and attorney general in the Roosevelt administration from 1906 to 1909.
Charles Joseph Bonaparte was a grandson of Jérôme Bonaparte (the youngest brother of the French Emperor Napoleon I).

Emperor Napoleon also had a FAKE father named Carlo Maria Bonaparte.

Bonaparte founded the Bureau of Inquisition which later became known as the "Federal" Bureau of Inquisition or the FBI. He also founded an organization called the American Protective League which spied on patriotic citizens who exposed Rome's activities in the United States. People confused it with the patriotic U.S. Protective Association or the APA.

Modern African slavery was started by the Portuguese and Spanish!!

The modern era began with the Discovery of the New World by John Cabot and the blessed Reformation of Saint Martin Luther.

The 2 Latin nations of Spain and Portugal were the originators of the modern African slave trade. As early as 1450, the Portuguese sailed down the coast of Africa and began capturing Africans and bringing them back to slavery in Portugal. In both Portugal and Spain, slavery was sanctioned by custom and law:

Helps's Life of Christopher Columbus, pp. 22 and 23, says: Sometime before 1454 a Portuguese factory was established at one of the Arguim Isles, and this factory soon systematized the slave trade. Thither came all kinds of merchandise, from Portugal, and gold and slaves were taken back in return; a number of the latter sent home annually, at the time of Ca Da Mosto's visit in 1454, being between seven and eight hundred. (Humboldt's Kosmos), Sabine's translation, 1848, vol. 2, p. 272. This factory established and operated by the Portuguese Catholic princes themselves, antedates the discovery of America by at least 38 years. (Miller, Slavery & Catholicism, p. 24).

A Dominican monk named Bartolomé de Las Casas was horrified by the cruel treatment of the New World natives by his fellow Spaniards. The natives were dying by the millions from hard labour in the mines and European diseases. His answer to this New World holocaust: Replace the dying natives with African slaves.

Dominican monk Bartolomé de Las Casas was HORRIFIED at the brutal treatment of the natives who were dying by the millions from diseases and forced labor in the mines.

His answer to this loss of labor to work the gold and silver mines:

IMPORT SLAVES FROM AFRICA!!

The Scriptures say that the tender mercies of the wicked are CRUEL (Prov. 12:10), and importing slaves from Africa was the remedy of Las Casas to the dearth of New World slaves:

This was all that the zeal of Las Casa's could procure at that juncture in favor of the Indians. The impossibility of carrying on any improvements in America unless the Spanish planters could command the labour of the natives, was an insuperable objection to his plan of treating them as free subjects. In order to provide some remedy for this, without which he found that it was vain to mention his scheme, Las Casa's proposed to purchase a sufficient numbers of Negroes from the Portuguese settlements on the coast of Africa, and to transport them to America in order that they might be employed as slaves in working the mines and cultivating the ground. One of the first advantages which the Portuguese had derived from their discoveries in Africa arose from the trade in slaves. Various circumstances concurred in reviving this odious commerce, which had been long abolished in Europe, and which is no less repugnant to the feelings of humanity than the principles of religion. As early as the year one thousand five hundred and three, a few Negro slaves had been sent into the New World. In the year one thousand five hundred and eleven, Ferdinand permitted the importation of them in greater numbers. They were found to be a more robust and hardy race than the natives of America. They were more capable of enduring fatigue, more patient under servitude, and the labour of one Negro was computed to be equal to that of four Indians. (Robertson, History of the Discovery and Settlement of Frank Marshall Davis's vision was a very far-left one. He pushed the federal government to adopt socialist policies, with more and more power concentrated in Washington. He wanted the United States to go in the direction of the Soviet Union. And Davis understood that the one institution standing in the way most vehemently was the Roman Catholic Church. "The Catholic hierarchy," he sneered, had launched a "holy war against communism." Indeed it had—and deservedly so. Nothing anywhere in the world persecuted the religious—and people generally—quite like communism. The Church correctly saw Soviet co Instead, he argues, Frank Marshall Davis, the radical poet and journalist who was a card-carrying member of the Communist Party USA, was the real, biological and ideological father of Barack Obama. "I decided to investigate Frank Marshall Davis. His close physical resemblance to Obama was shocking, while Obama little resembled the Kenyan Obama," Gilbert said. "How could this be?"
